

“Justice will roll down like waters” Journey to Justice: Two Birminghams

Thursday December 10th 2020 20.00-21.30

Civil rights and economic justice in Birmingham, Alabama and Birmingham, UK: next steps?

To mark International Human Rights Day, Journey to Justice is delighted to welcome Janice Kelsey, a US civil rights activist from Birmingham Alabama, whose story we tell in our travelling exhibition. She will be the main speaker at our online event with Bishop Jonathan Jackson, Senior Pastor at NTCG The Rock in Springhill, Birmingham. They will be joined by other speakers from Birmingham whose work is focused on social and economic justice as we look at history, today and what we can do now.

- Councillor John Cotton Cabinet Member, Birmingham City Council. Social Inclusion, Community Safety and Equalities
- Dr Angela Moran musician and teacher
- Abdullah Rehman MBE Community Engagement Lead, Bahu Trust UK
- Kai Daley student

Policemen lead a group of Black school children into jail in Birmingham, Alabama on May 4, 1963. © Bill Hudson/AP/Shutterstock

"It is an honour to be exhibited as a part of history and provided with an opportunity to share my story in the UK. It was a journey shared by thousands of youth who marched for freedom during the spring of 1963. Today, the struggle continues. Young people need to be informed by hearing the realities of the past. Hopefully, they will be able to relate and learn from the past as a catalyst for change in a peaceful manner today." Janice Kelsey

Visit our website: www.journeytojustice.org.uk Any questions: info@journeytojustice.org.uk

Tickets are free and booking is essential. A Zoom link will be sent the day before our event.

<https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/justice-will-roll-down-like-waters-journey-to-justice-two-birminghams-tickets-128836243673>